

The Importance of Power System Event Analysis

Russell W. Patterson TVA

This paper discusses the importance of and need for good analysis of all protective system operations. The paper discusses how good diagnostic information is being left on the table after "normal" operations and opportunities for improvements to protective relay settings or signatures of equipment anomalies are missed. Examples are given of valuable information that can be gleaned with a small time investment by analysis engineers.